- (1) In addition to the 17 Faculties, there are several inter-departmental programs which offer courses. However, most of these courses are given as part of the curriculum of one of the Faculties, with the corresponding policy indicated in this table.
- (2) 8 & 9 level courses are courses offered strictly for graduate students, as opposed to 6 & 7 level courses that are joint undergraduate-graduate courses. The level of the course is indicated by the third digit (from the left) of the course number.
- (3) The general commitment of teaching in English follows the following rules: Courses will be taught in English when an international graduate student requests this from the course teacher. In the case of 6 & 7 level courses (joint undergraduate-graduate courses), the request should be sent in advance, to both the course teacher and the departmental undergraduate studies office, before the date of preliminary registration for undergraduate studies. In this case, the Faculty will announce to the student body ahead of time that the course will be given in English. In all cases, if the teacher considers that teaching in English causes a serious difficulty, s/he may ask the Dean of the Faculty for permission to teach in Hebrew. In that case, the teacher will see that international students are provided with material in English where possible, to allow for reasonable studying conditions.
